The world would come. It's just out there
All bursting-tender and floatingly tangy.
I could call in it, quick and strong —
Just a little tap-smash, and here comes the world!
Air all expanding
I'd dance and fling my tears around
And live in a perfect jumbled order
Listening to the star-stories.

The glass is so clear, and smooth,
And I have no rocks or books or crosses
To smash with.
The world doesn't come through this window.

— Angela Kreider

Knock on your window. It may break.
Throw back the sash of your door. It may be bare.
Uncaulk the cracks. The air may be chilly.
Rip off the locks. The keys may rattle without security.
No longer look, no longer peer behind or at the threshold of.
Go through. Open wide. Invite in. Never close.
Windows are blinding. Doors are insecure.

— Jody Shearer

Sonnet of Fire and Snow

That winter night, I knelt to feed the fire,
Then, standing, watched the blood-hot embers glare
With veiled might: retreating from the pyre,
The window, hard and clear, I stopped to stare.
Outside; mute tomb of night, a moon of ice Exposed the smooth and polished shield of snow,
An empty world, without a sacrifice
To offer from the frozen field below.
Then, in the glass itself, my tired eyes
Could see the altar, clashing unity:
Great arms of fire reaching to the skies,
And burning up the silent, snowy sea.
Flat in the glass — the blazing flames of gold
Can now consume the sullen soul of Cold.

— Kerry Jantzi

We are the people of the window,
Watching the world through Iconoscope Eyes.
Spectators of reality
And unreality —
Voyeuristic mummies
Of the easy chair.

The Burning Church

We followed the old man's crooked finger to the church on the bald hill.
As we went he muttered names of fathers and great-aunts carved into the yellow pine pulpit.

Walls stood parched and naked amid the charred pews.
Blackened remnants of beams made feeble stabs benath the sky's blue vault.

Yet the windows studied our approach;
Their arched gaze spilling light
as our feet shuffled piles of ashes.
The broken edges of their glass shaped a laugh that echoed the flames' lick.
Birds perched on the cutting lips, reviving choruses once mingled with the somber light that seeped through the olive colored drapes.

The walls of this congregation were built without windows,
Word carefully stacked upon word until the light within grew stale and the breath of bodies folded in prayer turned cold.

One night the church burned,
An altar consumed without sacrifice.
The people ran down the hill, leaving the bricks to stand
like a raging prophet,
eyes stretched by his vision,
mouth gaping towards heaven crying:
Let us build our walls with windows.

— Randy Seitz

Nothing is more tantalizing
than an open window framing a Spring-laden world.

— Noel King

Inside Out

Window, window, through the wall
Why must light come in so small?
Long I look at others' glass;
Beams of day reflect from all.

All — or so it seems to be,
Underneath the canopy.
Brightness dims inside my nest;
Shades, though, hide the world from me.

True, at times the sky sends rain
Transports dirt and leaves the pane.
Winds as well rerun their route,
Strike stale air and then refrain.

Thoughts to change the sight within —
View anew and cease the sin.
I at last traverse the lens,
Now I look from outside in.

— Daryl Driver

Washington Study-Service Year

There aren't many correspondence courses in swimming. None of the EMC's course offerings are entitled "Philosophy of Penmanship." And I've never (ever) heard a lecture on how to kiss.

There's a basic truth here. An important portion of our life-learning comes through experience, not by being handed theory. Often doing is a better teacher than the blackboard is.

Hence, Washington Study-Service Year (WSSY). For ten months I, as one of eleven WSSY students, learned by doing, observing,, analyzing, living. The program is intended to maximize such experiential learning rather than relying on lecture, and I found this a stimulating change.

I learned about being an artist in the working world by having a twenty hour per week internship as a graphic artist, while others in the house had internships in their particular field. We explored group life and dynamics of personal relations (phew) by living together (and eating and talking and kidding and arguing and playing together) with one another in the WSSY house in Northeast D.C. We dealt with urban issues simply by living in the stratified city of Washington. In our weekly discussion and experience oriented seminar sessions, we worked with issues like institutions, racism, political process, Christ and culture, and the arts. Finally we took some more traditional academic courses and experienced university life by attending the University of Maryland part-time. There was a little time left for swimming and kissing.

Middle East Semester

An eight hour bus ride to New York, a six hour delay at the airport, an eight hour plane ride to Athens, directly followed by another bus ride and tour of the Acropolis and finally, rest ... thus began Middle East Semester 1984.

In the next three months, twenty-seven EMC students accompanied by faculty members Ken and Kass Seitz experienced life in the Middle East by studying, working, hiking, touring, cooking, laughing and complaining together through the struggles of adjusting to the various cultures they encountered.

Two weeks in Amman, Jordan were highlighted by a visit to a refugee camp, entering Palestinian homes and enjoying Arabic hospitality.

Eight intense weeks in Israel included a camping trip in the Sinai Desert, Bible study by the Sea of Galilee, a week of service, a free week to travel and the excitement of daily life in the old city of Jerusalem.

A final two week stay in Cairo, Egypt introduced the group to survival in a third world country. The reality of people hanging on to bus windows for a ride, ceaseless noise and traffic jams, polluted air and a limited supply of water was at times startling.

Arriving home and slipping back in the routine of student life was welcome yet sad. Photographs, souvenirs, friendships and vivid memories have replaced the day to day contact which comes from group life and serve as reminders of the valuable experiences that the twenty-nine "travelers" had in the Middle East.

Euroterm

On January 3, forty students and their leaders Ken and Helen Nafziger and their three children left for three months of studying in Europe. Two months of permanent residency in a youth hotel in Munich, West Germany gave us a chance to feel "at home" in a European city. Travelling by public transportation, eating in restaurants, washing clothes at the laundromat, and buying groceries were the kind of everyday activities that helped us experience a new culture as more than tourists.

Through study of European and German history, by seeing and hearing expressions of the Germans' creativity in the arts, architecture, and musical compositions of past artists and in the present expressions of the Fasching festival, window displays, and street musicians, and by learning, to varying degrees of fluency, the German language, we began to understand the German culture, at least to understand the importance of such experiences for becoming better members of a global community.

Our final month in Europe began with a weekend in Vienna, Austria. There we caught a night train into Poland where we spent ten days learning about a society even more different to us than that of West Germany. In Poland we were struck with the warmth and deep faith of a people whose social circumstances are sparse and rigid. Following our time in Poland, we enjoyed another expression of inner richness in the music of Bach and Handel whose 300th birthdays we celebrated in Leipzig, East Germany, a city central in their lives.

For the remaining twelve days, we broke into groups of two or three and scattered south to Italy and Switzerland or north to France, England, and the Netherlands. When we reunited in Frankfurt, Germany to fly back to the U.S., we were eager to return home, but reluctant to leave a place that had also become home

Navajo Nation Seminar

"Everything is going to be fine, but plans have changed," said Nancy Ryan, our leader, between bites of her frybread and mutton sandwich. That became our motto for the next three weeks because, we learned, the Navajo are not for time schedules like we Anglos are.

Though plans changed just about every other day, we were able to observe and work in our respective areas of study in the Kayenta schools, medical center, in health programs, or coal mines.

We lived with contemporary Navajo families, most single parent families. We did, however, have the opportunity to experience more traditional culture at the Navajo sheep camp. And interwoven with those experiences, we saw the sights of the West.

. . . and out of the West we came, twelve women, a little worse for the trip home, but a little better for the cross-cultural experience — at least having gained an awareness that another culture is not easily understood.

Costa Rica Seminar

he Sanchezes and Wanda Bowman

I think one of the most valuable aspects of my Costa Rica cross-cultural experience was the opportunity to see through someone else's eyes. I became accustomed to my host family's day-to-day habits, their rice and beans, their jokes, their traditions, their different sense of time, their Catholic beliefs. They were eager to share their way of life and to learn about mine. I not only learned about them but also about myself, because I saw my American-ness from the point of view of a small, vulnerable country which is greatly influenced by the decisions of my country's government.

Wellness Week

Wellness Week (September 17-21) was a time for assessing one's life style. The Student Life Office sponsored the many displays, speakers and activities included in Wellness Week. Wellness is a concept which promotes positive action to increase one's health and well-being. Factors such as diet, exercise, humor, rest, stress, habits and attitude are almost completely within one's control. Wellness Week emphasized this and provided resources for positive decision making.

Handicap Emphasis Week

Ray Roush

"Getting into the shoes" of people with disabilities was our goal during Handicap Emphasis, from October 31-November 2. Being born without arms did not keep Hiram Zayas from sharing with us his sensitivity and vision. Through the perspective of C. Ray and Alice Roush we came to see deafness as a problem that could not stop their ministry. Through Daniel Bowman's eyes, although he is blind, we sensed the difficulty and triumph of his life. About 20 of our campus community limited themselves to wheelchairs for a day to participate in the difficulties that Patty Cooper and Tony Wright, students at EMC, face daily. The wheelchair basketball game with Woodrow Wilson Rehab Center has a sense of celebration as their players illustrated what a person can achieve without full use of parts of the body most of us take for granted. EMC lost the game but we all won.

National Black History Month

February on campus was a time to focus on both Black American and Black African issues. A banner hanging in the chapel characterized Nairobi, and the topic for Spring Mission Service Week, also in February, was the Horn of Africa, especially in light of severe famine and despair there. College Assemblies during the month included various speakers who also spoke to pertinent issues blacks are facing today — issues as old as the ages, but not yet solved. Black History Month was an opportunity for us to understand better the rich cultural heritage blacks bring to our country and the EMC community.

The women's field hockey team enjoyed a successful season. Not only did they place second in the ODAC, but their record of 12-3-1 proved to be the best ever in the history of EMC field hockey. The team also scored the most goals ever in the season, and Traci Paton set a record as well, scoring the most goals in a single season.

Women making the ODAC first team were Cheryl Bergey, Linda Burkhart, and Traci Paton. Linda Burkhart was also named to the College Field Hockey Coaches Association All-American Team.

Defeating ODAC champions Lynchburg (1-0) was a major highlight for the soccer team. Players Phil Landes and Roger Kurtz both made the NCCAA All-American Team (first and second teams respectively) and the ODAC All-Conference Team.

Men's Basketball

The Men's Basketball team had a good year despite the fact that they were a young and new team — the Royals had only one senior on the team and lost all but one starter from the 83-84 season. A team highlight was a fourth place finish at the ODAC after being picked to finish seventh.

Other highlights included those of individual players. Leonard Dow was named ODAC Player of the Year, to the first team all-conference, and received other awards in the NCCAA, NCAA and VASID conferences. He also broke the EMC scoring record with 1547 points. Fred Crawford was named to the NCCAA District II First Team All-District, and Rodney Martin was named to the All-Tournament Team at the EMC Classic.

Women's Basketball

The ODAC and regular season championships, the NCCAA District II Championship, and placing fourth in the NCCAA National Tournament marked a super season for women's basketball. This also included an all-time record season of 22-4, as well as a record 12 game winning streak. Coach Sandy Brownscombe was also named ODAC Coach of the Year. Personal highlights included:

ODAC 1st team: Deana Moren
ODAC 2nd team: Moose Morris
ODAC All Tournament: Deana Moren, Moose Morris, and Linda Burkhart
NCCAA District Tournament: Co MVP's: Deana Moren, Susie French

Volleyball

Winning was the name of the game for women's volleyball. With a perfect 11-0 ODAC season, they won the Old Dominion Athletic Conference Championship for the third year in a row, and finished with a regional ranking of fourth. EMC also received the Player of the Year Award for the third consecutive year, this year's outstanding player being Jewel Lehman. Those named to the ODAC first team were Annette Grieser, Noel King, and Jewel Lehman, and Char Christophel was named to the ODAC second team.

Baseball

The Royals baseball team had a winning season with an 11-7 record. Coach Dennis Wyse noted that that was the best winning percentage in EMC history. Highlights of the season were a 3-2 win over archrival Lynchburg College and a 4th place finish in the ODAC.

Track & Field

EMC's track and field season was marked by individual progress and a successful NCCAA National meet. Phil Landes broke school records in the javelin and won 2nd place at the national meet. Also at that meet, Rose Williams took a 1st in discus and a 2nd in shot, Leonard Wingfield placed 1st in longjump, and Wingfield, Gretchen McCue, and Todd Kayal placed in other events.

YPCA

The Young People's Christian Association is a service organization open to any EMC or EMS student. The organization is divided into ten commissions which serve various needs in and out of the EMC community.

— Faythe Ropp

Commissioners: Front: Liz Witmer, Grandparent Adoption, Penny Peery, Woodrow Wilson, Juanita Stoltzfus, Woodrow Wilson, Lois Mohler, Community Outreach Middle: Brenda Zehr, Western State, Shelby Landis, Gospel Team, Dawn Dillon, Saturday Adoption, Mark Peachey, Prison Ministries, Les Horning, Campus Church Back: Joe Shenk, Faculty Advisor, Rich Mininger, Y-Church, Bruce Brunk, Western State

low: Saturday Adoption: Joann Lehman and kids Center: Grandparent Adoption: Liz Witmer and randma"

Saturday Adoption

Saturday Adoption is an outreach to the underprivileged children of the community. College students spend a few hours every other Saturday with their adopted child interacting as a group, then one-to-one as well. These kids benefit greatly from a relationship with a college student.

Grandparent Adoption

Grandparent Adoption is a commission with different degrees of involvement. Each student involved is assigned an adopted grandparent and they spend time together going for walks, putting puzzles together, and doing various other things. Students find they benefit as much as grandpa or grandma.

Community Outreach

Reaching out and touching someone is what Community Outreach is about. To begin the year, a group of students helped with various jobs at the MCC Relief Sale. Other students went once a month to sing at the Virginia Mennonite Home, help with Books Abroad, and did projects such as cleaning, painting, and providing transportation.

Prison Ministries

Prison Ministries did not fare too well this year. Things started with groups going weekly to Camp 8, a local correction center, as well as to the county jail. First students were denied access to the county jail for reasons not understood, then Camp 8 asked students to not come back. We believe that God does have a place for students in this ministry. Pray that God will open hearts and doors as He chooses.

Western State

Woodrow Wilson

Two of the weekly outreaches are Woodrow Wilson and Western State. Woodrow Wilson is a rehabilitation center where lots of action goes on (ask any of the "woo-woo" gang). Western State is a state mental hospital in Staunton. The purpose for visiting is to share God's love with these lonely people.

Work Teams

One Gospel Team and four Work Teams were sent out this year. The Gospel Team traveled to the southeastern parts during Spring Break, sharing a message of "Hope in a World of Despair." Work Teams went to Mississippi, Richmond, Washington, D.C., and New York. All returned with positive reports of the joy in sharing.

Y-Church

Y-Church consists of groups of several students each, involved in seven rural Mennonite churches. Students help with leadership and participate in the services. These local groups have greatly appreciated student involvement.

Commencement Weekend

EMC's Sixty-Seventh Annual Commencement weekend began Saturday morning, April 27, with the Nurses Commissioning. Many of the 28 graduates participated in the program, reflecting on the meaning of the pinning and their journey to graduation. Sara Zimmerman, a former Professor of Nursing at EMC, delivered a charge to graduates to serve with confidence.

Calvin E. Shenk, Professor of Church Studies, addressed all graduates Saturday afternoon at the Baccalaureate and Commissioning service. His message, The Cosmic Christ and the Global Village, dealt with the problem of cultural relativity and Christianity. Senior Shelby Landis reminisced about her growth during college, and classmate Roger Kurtz confessed to being a "closet knitter," challenging Seniors to act decisively and unashamedly.

Saturday evening graduates, friends, and families gathered for a Commencement concert featuring music faculty. Following, a reception hosted by President and Mrs. Detweiler honored Seniors and their parents.

After a rainy Sunday morning, skies appeared to be going to clear for Commencement exercises at 1:00 on the Front Lawn, but clouds gathered again as graduates, faculty, and guests congregated below. Shortly after the program began, raindrops fell, the shower gaining intensity as the congregation sang, "Holy God, we praise thy name . . . everlasting is thy reign." Reign or rain? New grads, Old grads, relatives, and spectators rushed for cover. Graduates volunteered to stand so that more seating was available for guests in the chapel, and the ceremony reconvened about an hour later. "We're not in the habit of baptizing our speakers," President Detweiler told Wayne F. Geisert, President of neighboring Bridgewater College, as he introduced him. Geisert's address, The Prime of Life, stressed "investing ourselves for the service to humankind." President Detweiler then conferred degrees to 222 graduates, slightly damp and chilled, but satisfied.
